

Open doors - a dance performance

With common intention, listening and open doors, five dancers meet. They listen, seek, follow and challenge. A strongly growing communication is created and unexpected opportunities are given a chance. What comes next is still in the future. The dancers live in the moment.

Dancing in a circle is something that exists in many cultures, in Breaking and hip-hop culture it is called a Cypher. A Cypher can be perceived both as something very concrete and at the same time something free, frightening, just as warm and welcoming. It arises through common intention, it does not exist without the presence and meeting with others. Through vulnerability, honesty and acceptance, the door to the common energy is opened.
